

ORWAC CALL

In keeping with the conference theme "Promoting Social Justice Through Our Work," ORWAC encourages submissions that recognize the multiple opportunities to promote justice in our communities, work places, institutions, and interpersonal relationships. Because of the increasingly diverse nature of our discipline, we encourage submissions and panels that embrace the idea of dialogue and are reflective of increasing the dialogue(s) among scholars interested in women and research from a variety of communication perspectives, enabling us to honor the good work that we already do and encouraging us to find new ways to use our knowledge and skills to create a more just world.

Please visit the WSCA website as www.westcomm.org for specific submission guidelines. However, please note that ORWAC is now only accepting panel proposals and competitive papers electronically. They should be sent directly to: Tracey Owens Patton, Department of Communication & Journalism, The University of Wyoming, topatton@uwyo.edu. Papers and panel submissions should be sent as an MS Word attachment. Submissions must be received no later than Thursday September 1, 2006.
